HONOLULU, H. T., JAN. 9, 1902

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

It is seldom that such a handsome offer is made to any body of business men as that which emanated yesterday from the firm of Harkfeld and Company to the Chamber of Commerce of Honolulu. This body is now assured of the free use of convenient and well equipped offices for, as Mr. Isenberg put it, "as long as the building stands." That means indefinitely, for such a block as the Harkfeld house has just constructed will be a landmark in Honolulu in perpetuity, unless some unforeseen earthquake or tidal wave should obliterate the city.

Having no occasion to worry about rent, the Chamber can devote all its efforts and energies to the expansion and upbuilding of Hawaii's commerce, and making the port of Honolulu more attractive to shipping. Very properly, the attention of the Chamber might be forcibly directed to what is Congressionally known as "The Improvement of Rivers and Harbors." While it is true that we have no navigable rivers in the Territory, there are several ports of entry where the landings might be improved and better protected by breakwaters or some less expensive methods. The dredging of Honolulu harbor is a matter that rightly comes within the province of Congress instead of the Territory, and the deepening of the channel at this port would be appreciated by all shipmasters and shipowners.

Another matter to which the Chamber of Commerce might very properly direct its attention is to the question of light houses. More of these could be placed to advantage on the islands, especially on Molokai. It might be worth while to invite suggestions from residents on the other islands and from the captains of vessels in the inter-island trade. The Chamber making its recommendations to Congress after carefully investigating the ideas submitted. It is better to take action now than to wait until work has been commenced upon the construction of the isthmian canal, when there is bound to be a considerably increased movement of shipping in this direction.

Congress will appreciate the importance of such work here, with the development of the trade of the United States to the Orient and, while it may be too late to secure any appropriation during the present session, facts and arguments can be prepared to support a just claim. As the Rivers and Harbors bill is generally put through with a rush at the end of the session, something may even be done within the next few months if the Chamber of Commerce acts promptly in the matter.

LABOR AND PROSPERITY.

The workingman of today who does his own thinking has had the proof presented to him that it is to his best interests to stand by the platform and principles of the Republican party. The fact that there have been strikes during this period of prosperity no doubt affords a great opportunity for calumny howling, but the Democrats always fail to point out that strikes during a Republican Administration are for more wages, and that strikes during a Democratic Administration are against lower wages, and that labor then inevitably loses. The American wage-earner wants the present good times and prosperity to continue indefinitely, and he will not throw his good thing away for any bubble of promises, which only means a disturbance of their industrial conditions, with less work, lower wages, idleness, soup-kitchens, free bread and the poor house.

Wages paid in the United States are from two to four times greater than the wages paid to the corresponding class of labor in the free-trade countries of the world. The purchasing power of a dollar in America is also correspondingly greater. Admitted that rents and the price of native products may be cheaper in foreign countries than they are here, this difference is nothing like the wide disparity in the amount of wages earned.

Moreover, the condition of living must be considered, as well as the nominal cost. Cheap rents and cheap prices mean inferior accommodations and poorer living. To the average worker in foreign countries, most of the comforts and conveniences that are in common use by the American wage-earner are positive luxuries. The American workman and his family are the best-educated, the best-dressed, the best-housed, and in every way the best-situated workers in the world. The American wage-earner is always the most skillful workman. His duties and responsibilities are privileges possessed by no other laborers, and to his intelligence and achievements are largely due the fact that the United States is today the envy of the civilized world.

LIFE IN HAWAIIAN ISLES.

Walter C. Weedon Lectures at the Y. M. C. A. in Omaha.

Walter C. Weedon of Honolulu lectured to a large crowd at the Young Men's Christian Association auditorium in Omaha on "Hawaii, the Paradise of the Pacific." Mr. Weedon's lecture was beautifully illustrated by stereoscopic views of points of interest in the Sandwich Islands.

By means of maps showing the location of the islands, as compared with all parts of importance in the Pacific, Mr. Weedon showed that Honolulu is the key to Oriental trade and stated that the United States could far better spare one of its states than give up the little island of Hawaii. He declared that the island possessions of the United States have the finest climate in the world and stated that in seven years' residence in Honolulu he had never known the thermometer to rise about 89 degrees and had never known it to fall below 56 degrees.

"I have lived under seven different governments in Honolulu," said Mr. Weedon. "I have been intimately associated with the persons who have ruled the island. In spite of all that has been said of Mr. Dole, I desire to state most emphatically that he has been the island's greatest benefactor. He is a thorough American and a good officer."

In discussing the politics of the islands Mr. Weedon explained that there are three parties—Republican, Democratic and home rule. At the recent election the home rule party was in the majority.

"In a year Honolulu has grown from a city of 39,000 to a city of 45,000 people," said the speaker. "The increase of population through out the islands has been nearly 42 per cent. No other city or territory can show such a tremendous growth. And yet the islands have only begun to develop."

NOTES ABOUT WOMEN.

Starrock Mary, who is called the "Reindeer Queen of Alaska," received the name from owning the largest herd of reindeer, 500 in number, in the Territory.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton celebrated her eighty-sixth birthday at her son's residence in New York a short time ago. Mrs. Stanton told her friends that she was never in better health than now.

Miss Alverda M. Stout of Columbus, O., who, although but 18 years of age, is a mechanical engineer and among the most competent members of the craft.

Mrs. Ole Bull, wife of the celebrated violinist, lives in Cambridge, Mass. She has presented the instrument used by her husband to the museum at Bergen. It was made in 1532 by Casparo di Salo.

The Empress of Germany has the finest pearl necklace in existence. It contains three world-famous necklaces, one of which formerly belonged to the ex-Queen of Naples and another adorned the image of the Virgin of Atakha. The entire necklace is said to be worth $500,000.

There appears to be nothing objectionable in the method of raising a check adopted by a Washington lady, who upon receiving a check for $10 from President Roosevelt for the bazaar of the Newsboys' and Children's Aid Society, framed the document and sold it for $50.

The only foundation for the story that Cissie Loftus was to take Ellen Terry's place in Sir Henry Irving's company is her having been engaged to play Marguerite in the Irving special revival of "Faust" in London next year. Miss Terry, save in this and some other light roles, will continue, as heretofore, the English actor's chief support.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, eldest daughter of the President, is at the home of her grandfather, G. C. Lee, at Brookline, Mass. Some part of each year Miss Roosevelt has spent with her grandparents, and she loves to visit the places that her mother was fond of when a girl. A little way beyond the Lee estate is situated the small wooden Unitarian church, where her mother was married to the President.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The American people are notoriously forgetful of the misdeeds of men who have betrayed public trusts for personal aggrandizement. They do not cherish resentment after they have administered chastisement.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A national Democratic committee-man says the party cannot afford to change its national platform every minute. Perhaps not, but when it falls down it is not good policy to reconstruct it of the same flimsy material.—Boston Transcript.

Lots of news these days. With the Supreme Court grinding out decisions, Congress in session and the chief apostle of the strenuous life in the White House none can complain that "nothing's doing."—Portland Oregonian.

And Sulzer, too! This dauntless foe of the trusts has now become vice-president of the Sabine Oil Company, which is in cahoots with the Standard Oil Company. Is there yet remaining an antagonist of the trusts who has not crossed over into their "land of pure delight, where oil and honey flow."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Convicts in Sing Sing prison enjoyed a sweet morsel of revenge the other day, when George Bissett, the New York policeman sentenced for extortion, arrived there to serve his time. As he was led to his cell the other prisoners jeered lustily, for they had all learned of his coming. Some particularly jubilant yells were uttered by the fellows whom Bissett had helped to striped suits.

Henry C. Payne, the new Postmaster General, began his business career as a clerk in the dry goods store of Sherwin, Nowell & Pratt of Milwaukee. When the firm dissolved he became a member of the company that succeeded to its business. After several years ill fortune compelled a suspension and Mr. Payne went into politics. He became postmaster of Milwaukee and subsequently obtained control of the street car and electric light franchises, out of which he has made a fortune.

A century from now, when the history of events in China within the last two years shall have been written in judicial fashion, the record of Christendom will not be a bright one. In the time light of the present it seems as if the United States, from a humanity viewpoint, deserves about all the credit there is attaching to the alleged settlement of disputes in the Flowery Kingdom. Will this settlement hold through the next hundred years? Doubtful, very.—Minneapolis Times.

The New York Times says many persons living have witnessed the whole development of the world's railway system from a few miles of strap rail over which cars were drawn by horses. According to the latest statistics, there are 466,539 miles of operated tracks, carrying 3,380,000,000 passengers a year, moving 192,000,000 tons of freight and showing gross earnings of $1,865,000,000. The network of rails likely to cover the earth a century hence is too big a subject even for the imagination.

The projected naval station in the Philippines will cost at least $30,000,000, according to the estimates submitted by Rear Admiral Henry C. Taylor, United States navy, in his late report, as president of a special board appointed to consider this project. "The station," says Engineering News, "would have to be equipped with dry docks, machine shops and all the plant necessary not only for overhauling ships, but for building new warships. Defenses are also included against sea attack. The isolated position of such a station demands much special provision for storage of material, housing of workmen, hospitals, coaling-station, etc."

ROBBERIES STILL CONTINUE.

Burglars Make Attempt at Places of Paris and Emmeluth.

The usual quorum of burglaries were not absent Tuesday night. One man prowled around Geo. H. Paris' place on the Plains after midnight but was scared off by Paris who sallied forth with a gun.

Another burglary was attempted at Emmeluth's store on King street where the burglar entered by smashing a window but did not secure anything.

Finally a native stole a watch from a workman at the Hackfeld building. He was recognized, however, and was caught by the police later in the day.
